EMERGENCY MEDICINE LEARNING & RESOURCE CENTER 12 LEAD EKG INTERPRETATION COURSES

Basic 12 Lead EKG Interpretation Course

This course is for those who want to become more confident and comfortable with their use of the 12-lead ECG with potential STEMI patients. You will first develop a systematic approach to recognize genuine ST segment elevation when present. Next, once genuine ST segment has been identified you will learn to balance out the likelihood of the elevation being produced by STEMI or one of the STEMI impostors (non-infarct causes of ST elevation). These fundamental concepts are solidified through extensive practice and case studies. Also covered are important topics such as “Who gets a 12-lead” and how to rapidly obtain an ECG this is clear and accurate.

Dates: March 12, 2009 8:30am – 5:30pm

12 Lead EKG Interpretation: Beyond the Basics

This course is intended to take providers already familiar with the essentials of STEMI recognition to the next level. You will learn how to recognize evidence of new onset Left Bundle Branch Block (the other indication for immediate reperfusion). In addition, you will learn how to utilize additional lead ECGs to not only better identify STEMI but to also help tailor the management of STEMI complications such as hypotension, Chest pain and AV block. Also discussed are strategies to improve your identification of the top STEMI impostors AND know what ECG findings suggest STEMI even in the presence of a potential impostor. Included are extensive review and practice sessions to help you retain these concepts.
